I am an opera singer. What trouble I had to find the right cigarette! Now I smoke "Helmar" Turkish cigarettes. A great throat specialist recommended them. He said, "Helmars" are absolutely pure Turkish and mild. They will soothe and refresh you. He was right, "Helmar" is the high note in Turkish cigarettes.

The mildest tobacco for cigarettes is Turkish. The best tobacco for cigarettes is Turkish. Don't pay ten cents for anybody's cigarette until you have tried "Helmar," a fascinating, elevating, gentleman's smoke.

GIRL'S BODY FOUND IN RIVER.

Gladys Stearns, 19, Had Feared She Might Lose Sight.

Brattleboro, May 18.—After being in the Connecticut river over 11 days, the body of Miss Gladys Stearns, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willis D. Stearns, of Hinsdale, N. H., was found floating in the river yesterday just north of the Massachusetts line. It was close to the New Hampshire shore and was easily recognized.

The body was found by Henry Pelatech of Northfield, a Polish resident on the C. L. R. Alexander farm. He went down to his onion field near the river and as he had been asked to keep watch for the possible appearance of the body floating near enough to the bank that he reached it with a short pole.

Mr. Pelatech went to the home of John Fisher and notified the parents of the girl by telephone. It was thought at that time that the body was south of the state line and Dr. N. P. Wood of Northfield, coroner, was notified. Later it was discovered that it was just north of the line, so the Hinsdale selectmen were informed, and they gave permission for the removal of the body to the undertaking rooms of George N. Kidder of Northfield.

The place where the body was floating is a mile or more from the Boston & Maine railroad bridge across the Connecticut river at South Vernon. The Connecticut River Power Co.'s diver, John Care of Vernon, who searched for the girl last week, did not go as far south as that, but dynamite was exploded in the river farther south, nearly to the Schell bridge. A motor boat had patrolled the river every day, and Mount Hermon students and others had kept watch.

Miss Stearns, who was a popular woman in Hinsdale, lived in her father's family on the Northfield road. On Friday, May 5, she and her mother went to Northfield for consultation with respect to the girl's eyes, which were very painful by reason of rheumatism. It is thought that on her way home that afternoon she mistreated that she might lose her sight, and she told her mother that she wanted to pick Mayflowers and get out of the carriage.

As she did not return at night a party searched for her, without result, and next morning it was learned that her hat and coat were not far from the east end of the railroad bridge. Tracks led from there to the bridge, and it was at once assumed that she jumped off, which conclusion seems to have been correct. A diver was employed and the river was dragged all through the following week.
